

Note: Control-plane overheads are computed deterministically and are identical across protocols; data-plane improvements refer to TX+RX energy on real topology using connectivity-derived link success.